

Roundtable member participant agreement

This agreement sets out expectations of membership of the voluntary initiative known as the Roundtable on the Responsible Recycling of Metals (RRRM or the Roundtable).

In joining a Roundtable Working Group, participating in other formal Roundtable activities and collaboration the organisation agrees to the following:

3. to contribute time, experience, expertise and as agreed on request, data and information into the RRRM to help achieve its objectives, including through participation and support of working groups
4. to provide its name and organisational logo and optionally a short statement confirming why it is interested in the responsible recycling and secondary use of metals and if any particular aspects of metals recycling are important to it
5. it irrevocably grants a non-exclusive royalty free licence to RRRM to use its logo on the RRRM website and for other RRRM related purposes
6. that it is not currently engaged in any activity which would be likely to bring the RRRM into disrepute
7. to act in accordance with applicable privacy and data protection laws and regulations
8. to comply with applicable anti-trust laws and regulations
9. to fairly represent the RRRM and not to use it to endorse or market any products
10. the RRRM is a time limited initiative set up to deliver its Terms of Reference and that any subsequent activities will be subject to further agreement
11. the RRRM is facilitated by a secretariate as selected by the RRRM Steering Group
12. in consultation with its membership, the RRRM Steering Group is ultimately responsible for the outputs of the RRRM

There is no cost to join the RRRM. All costs associated with attendance at RRRM events or in association with RRRM activities are the members responsibility.

If you wish to be informed of the RRRM activities and outcomes, but have no direct involvement, you will not be considered as a member.
